SCHOOL BOARD'S
MONTHLY MEETING

The board met at the office of the superintendent. Present, Chairman, W. J. Nesbitt, J. M. Orrel, B. F.
Hardesty of the board, Supt. Platts being absent on account of illness Mrs.
F. R. Horton was appointed secretary pro tem.

Minutes of May meeting read and adopted.

The committee on the Narrows school house reported building not quite finished. The committee was continued with instructions to finish building.

The superintendent reported progress on building for wagons and school furniture. The building will be ready for use in a short time.

The chairman was instructed to correspond with parties interested in establishing a school at Lower Narrows.
Mrs. J. C. Bolden was appointed to commence school at No. 103 the first Monday in July.

The board discussed the repairing of the Jensen School building and instructed temporary repairs made so that no further damage would occur until permanent repairs can be made.

A deputation from Vero waited on the board with petition for summer school as soon after July 1st as possible.

The board acknowledged receipt of a large number of applications but on account of the illness of superintendent deferred action thereon until meeting June 25.

Long Tennessee Fight.

For twenty years W. L. Rawls, of Bells, Tenn., fought nasal catarrh. He writes: "The swelling and soreness inside my nose was fearful, till I began applying Bucklen's Arnica Salve to the sore surface; this caused the soreness and swelling to disappear, never to return." Best salve in existence. 25c at the Fort Pierce Drug store.

Surprised the Astronomer.

Dr. Flamsteed, who was astronomer royal in Newton's time, was rather tickled by the belief of his neighbors in his powers of consulting the stars about terrestrial affairs. An old wash-erwoman at Greenwich who had been robbed of her linen came to consult him about its recovery. So he set about drawing squares and circles and suggested that if she went into a certain field he would not be surprised if she found her lost linen in a ditch. But when she came back "with haste and joy" and a half crown in her hand for his fee he was not only very much surprised, but alarmed. "Good woman," he said, "I am heartily glad you have found your linen, but I assure you I knew nothing of it and intended to read you a lecture on the folly of applying to any person to know events not in human power to tell, but I see Satan has a mind I should deal with him, and never will I attempt such an affair again so long as I live."

Driven From Home.

"Did you hear that the daughter of that rich man in the next block had been driven from home?"
"No. When did it happen?"
"Just after she got into the carriage."—Baltimore American.

A Bad Head.

"They say," murmured Mr. McSosh, "that two heads are better than one. but I doubt it. If I had two like the one I've got this morning I'd be glad I wouldn't commit suicide."—Cleveland Leader.

A Compliment.

"What did he say when you told him he was the worst liar you ever knew?" "He merely remarked that he had been flattered before."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

AN ENGLISH HERO

Remarkable British Tribute to the Ability of Nelson.

The time has come when we can specially do honor to Nelson's memory without wounding the feelings of other nations. The first thing to be noted concerning him is that he is the only man who has ever lived who by universal consent is without a peer. In every walk of life except that which Nelson chose as his own you will find several competitors for the first place, each one of whom will have many supporters. Alexander of Macedon, Hannibal, Caesar, Marlborough, Frederick the Great and Napoleon have been severally put forward for the palm of generalship. To those who would acclaim Richelieu as the first of statesmen others would oppose Chatham or William Pitt or Cavour or Bismarck or Marquis Ita. Who was the first of sculptors?
Who the first of painters? Who the first of poets? In every case there is a great difference of opinion. Ask, however, who was the first of admirals, and the unanimous reply will still be, "Nelson," tried as he was by many years of high command in war. It is not only among his fellow countrymen that his pre-eminence is acknowledged.
Foreigners admit it as readily as we proclaim it ourselves.—Admiral Sir Cy-prius Bridge in Cornhill Magazine

Franklin's Sawdust Pudding.

Franklin believed in fair competition in freedom for others as well as himself and cared more for his personal independence in the conduct of his business than for the business itself.
The story of the sawdust pudding should be known in every newspaper office in the country. When he first started the Gazette he made some free comments on certain public officials, and some of the influential patrons of the paper resented it and tried to stop it. He invited them to dinner. When they came they found nothing on the table but a pudding made of coarse meal and a jug of water. They sat down. Franklin filled their plates and then his own and proceeded to eat heartily, but his guests could not swallow the stuff. After a few moments Franklin rose and, looking at them, said quietly: "My friends, any man who can subsist on sawdust pudding, as I can, needs no man's patronage."
—American Illustrated Magazine.

A Scheme and a Luncheon.

One of Balzac's wild schemes was a plan to combine Paris theaters. One morning in September, 1839—an early day to talk of monopoly—ten literary friends of the great novelist met by invitation at his house. Before luncheon Balzac told them of his scheme. His idea was to form a trust to buy up all the theaters as a sequel to a smaller preliminary trust for the supply of plays to every theater in Paris. "The ten guests were to supply them. He estimated the profits of the first year at $120,000, and each year would, he thought, bring in more money. He expounded his scheme at length for over an hour, and finally one of the guests suggested that he might go on at table.
The novelist started. "I forgot all about ordering anything to eat!" he cried, and late in the afternoon the members of the shadowy trust made a shadowy meal of bread and cheese and sour wine in a small country restaurant.

The Great Air Whales.

The native inhabitants of the Fiji Islands believe thunder to be the bel-lowing of the great air whale, a mythi-cal creature which, according to their folklore stories, inhabits the opposite side of all thunder clouds. If the regulation thunder cloud appears uncompanied by the ominous rumblings peculiar to such phenomena, they take it as a token that the great Spirit is pleased with their past doing. If, however, on the other hand, the detonations be frequent and violent they are sure that the god of the elements is displeased and immediately engage themselves in all sorts of ludicrous incen-sations for the purpose of righting matters. Lightning is to them the result of the air whale gnashing his teeth together and thus striking fire. Another peculiarity of this primitive people lies in the fact that they will not partake of food while a thunder cloud is in sight, fearing that the air whale will pounce upon and devour them for such irreverence.

Posterity.

The contemporary mind may in rare cases be taken by storm, but posterity never. The tribunal of the present is accessible to influence; that of the future is incorrupt.—Gladstone.

A Miraculous Cure.

The following statement by H. M.
Adams and wife, Henrietta, Pa., will interest parents and others. "A miraculous cure has taken place in our home.
Our child had eczema 5 years and was pronounced incurable, when we read about Electric Bitters, and concluded to try it. Before the second bottle was a'taken we noticed a change for the better, and after taking 7 bottles he was completely cured." It's the up-to-date blood medicine and body building tonic. Guaranteed. 50c and $1.00 at the Fort Pierce Drug store.
